A Look Back at Scottsdale

The various Scottsdale, Arizona, auctions in the latter half of January each year are always a welcome break from the post-holiday doldrums and put us in mind of warmer days ahead. Now that the results are in, it's a great time to look at the muscle machines that found new owners and to contemplate the increased wrenching and pleasure-driving opportunities that are right around the corner.

Russo and Steele

Concurrent with Barrett-Jackson was Russo and Steele's Scottsdale sale, which ran January 19-22. Among the higher-priced lots of the sale was a 1969 Ford Mustang Boss 429 that found a new owner at $335,500. Another hot Ford was a 1962 Galaxie with G-code 406, which sold for $56,500.

Mopar aficionados were treated to two Hemi cars at Russo and Steele, a 1966 Plymouth Belvedere, which brought $64,900 and a 1968 Dodge Super Bee, which changed hands for $85,800.

On the General Motors side, sales included a 1987 Buick Grand National, which sold for $41,800, a 1970 Oldsmobile 4-4-2 W-30, which brought $165,000, a 1965 Pontiac Bonneville convertible boasting a dealer-installed 421/four-speed combo, which changed hands for $90,200, and perhaps most exciting, Bruce Morgan's fuelie 1957 Chevrolet that dominated Stock class drag racing in 1961, which found a new owner for $37,400.

Barrett-Jackson

The first auction in Scottsdale was, of course, the famed Barrett-Jackson sale, held January 14-22. You may recall from our previous coverage such Barrett-Jackson offerings as a fuel-injected, manual-transmission 1957 Chevrolet convertible. The red ragtop sold for $92,400. The 1957 Thunderbird with an E-code, dual-quad 312-cu.in. engine, changed hands for $68,200. The memorable supercharged 1957 Golden Hawk brought $95,700. A 1969 Chevrolet Camaro Pace Car convertible with a small-block V-8 and automatic transmission brought $55,000.

Bonhams

Held one day only, January 19, Bonham's Scottsdale sale featured several interesting lots. We were watching the Twin-H powered 1954 Hudson Hornet convertible; that bit of primordial muscle sold for $66,000. Also of note were a 1966 Corvette vintage racer that brought $28,050 and a 2009 Dodge Viper Venom that changed hands for $83,600.

Worldwide Auctioneers

On January 18, Worldwide Auctioneers held its Scottsdale debut, which included one of only four 1966 Shelby G.T. 350 convertibles produced in 1966. That notable car sold for $742,500. Another G.T. 350, this one a 1965 fastback, brought $379,500. Impressive Chevrolet sales included a $1,980,000 L-88-packing 1967 Corvette, a 1969 Camaro Z/28 equipped with the JL8 four-wheel disc-brake option, which changed hands for $110,000, and a 1969 Baldwin-Motion Stage III Camaro that found a new owner at $101,750. Also on hand was a beautiful, blue 1970 Pontiac GTO Ram Air IV hardtop that sold for $101,200.
